History At A Glance

Italian Swiss Colony building in 1903 soon after its construction. Notice that to the right of the building Telegraph Hill is still coming down to its back edge. Today the edge of Telegraph Hill is two blocks further west.

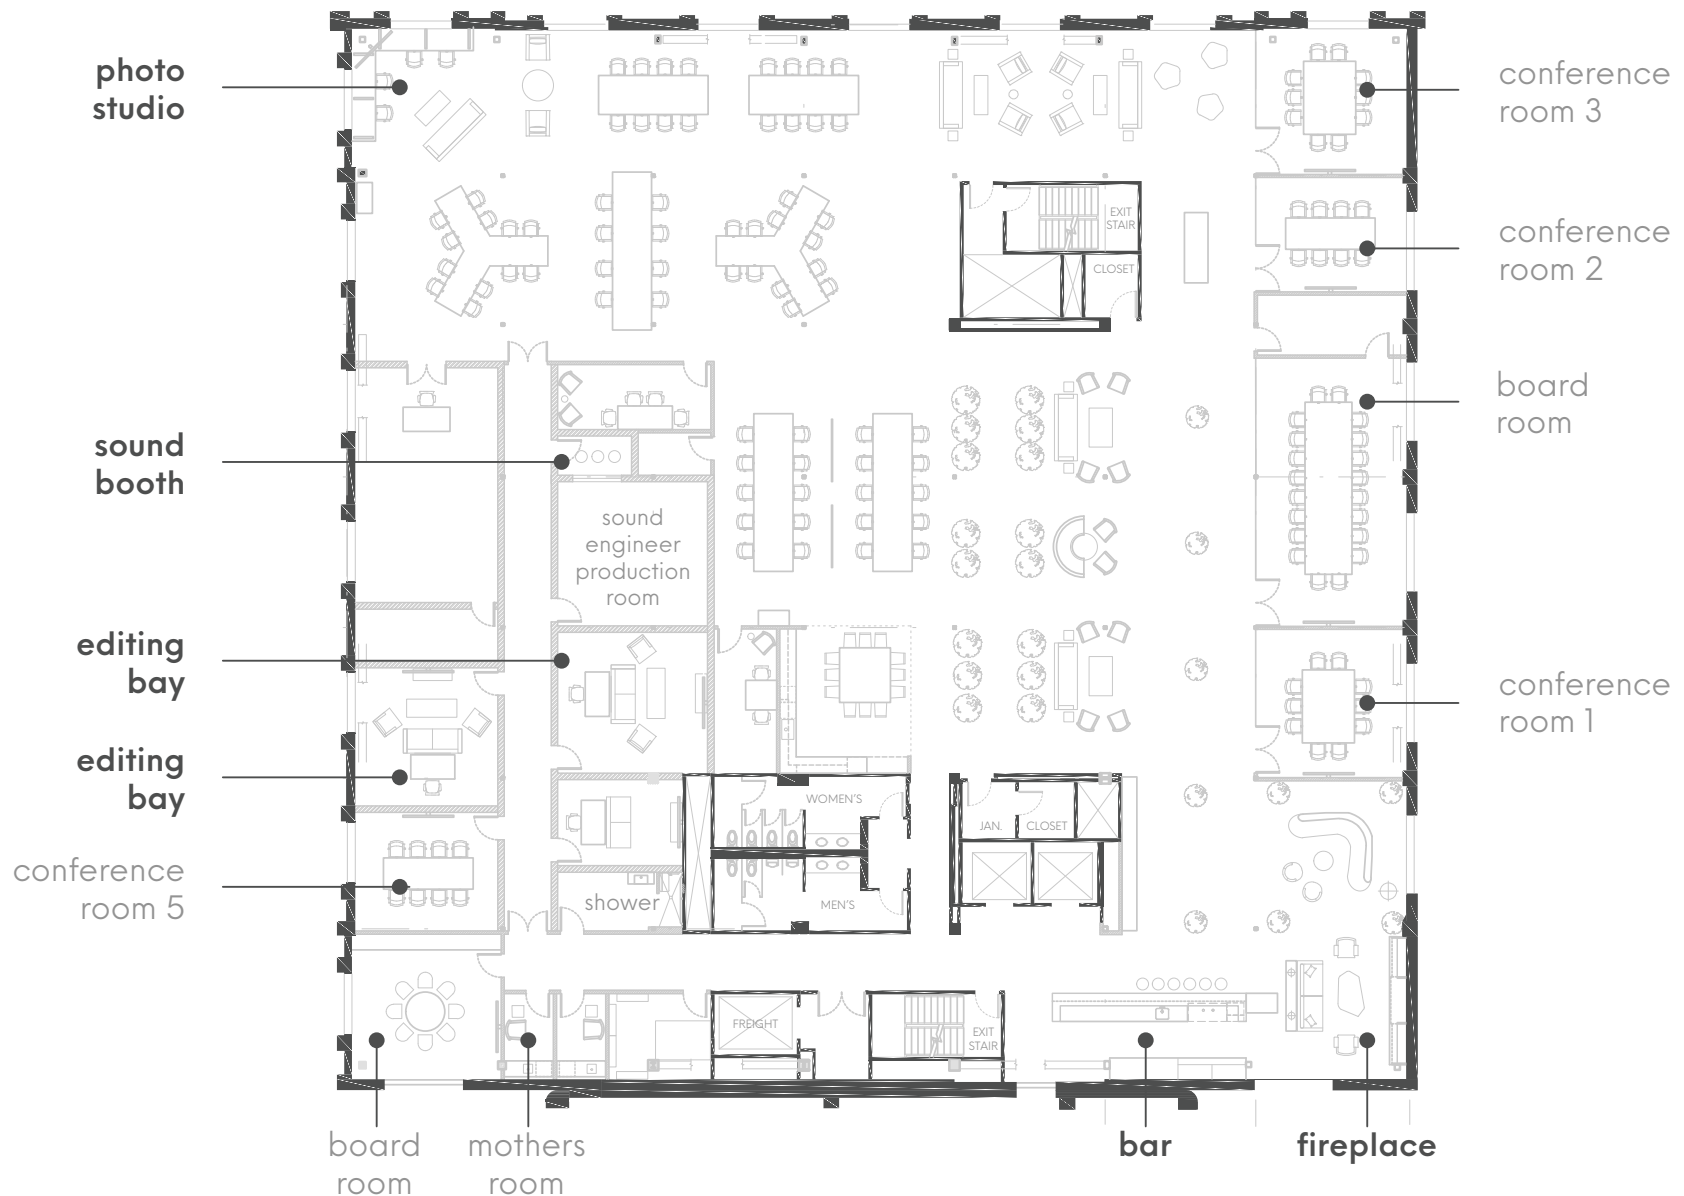

The Italian Swiss Company building as it appeared in 1975 when it was in poor condition. Note that lengths of the balustraded parapet have been removed.

The Italian Swiss Colony building in 1977, the year it was designated as a local landmark. Note the complete removal of the cornice and parapet, which were both later restored.
